Parents are the most important people for a human being. They provide education, love and protection. Children that do not have parents that love them, are usually unhappy children with a bad lucky. I think that parents are the most important step for their children's life. I would like to focus on three ideas that make a good parent. Parents should have love for their children, provide education and work.

First, love is the first step to become a good parent. When parents love their children they are making their relationship better to work on their difficulties. I believe that my parents have a true love with me. They are always asking me if I am good and feeling well. They usually do simple things but simple things that show their true love to me and help me a lot to improve what I want to my life.

Second, provide education must be given to a child from their parents. Parents should teach their children at home and teach them how to succeed in life. Explaining how life works. They have to enroll their children in a school making sure that they are attending school and doing a great job on it. My parents have given me great education. They sent me to great schools and taught me how to have a good behavior.

Third, work is the final step to become a good parent. How can parents take care of their children without a job? It does not mean that everyone must be wealthy to take care of their children. A normal job with a normal income is totally welcome to help parents to provide what their children need. My family is not rich. My parents have a normal job and they can sustain us very well. They are always have money for everything me and my sister need. They are able to support our family with a good income.

In conclusion, I strongly believe that parents should have love, provide education and work. Children will be parents one day. If they have good parents. They will probably be good parents for their children too. I love my parents and they love me. I am really grateful for their help to me. I can say that I have the best parents in the world. I could not live without them. Parents are the only people you can trust without any doubt. Any friend cannot take parents place.
Both passages are talking about Honolulu which is a big city in Hawaii. However, each one is talking about different things about Honolulu. The professor in the listening passage has another thought about Honolulu.

The reading passage says that Honolulu is popular city because of its great weather. It says that never get less than 60F and more than 90F which are two perfect temperatures. The listening passage disagrees with that. It says that Honolulu is still a great weather city. However, it is not true that it never less than 60F and more than 90F. The wind makes the city with a pleasant clime. However, it has big temperatures changes.

The reading passage says that people go to Hawaii to go shopping and visit the largest mall of Hawaii. Disagreeing with that the professor of the listening passage says that it is probably not true. He says that people usually go to Hawaii because of its natural environment which means that it is a great place to rest and to have fun.

According with the reading passage Honolulu does not have crimes. People they are all very friendly because of the Hawaiian spirit of Aloha. Weareas, the listening passage says that people can find very kind people there but it is not a perfect city. It has crimes, they should lock their cars correctly and take care of their wallets and bags.

In conclusion, tourists cannot expect a perfect city in Hawaii. They have to be careful about the city problems.
