Prompt: Some people prefer a small group of friends. Others prefer a large group. Which do you prefer? Use specific reasons and details to support your choice.

There are two opinions about what kind of group of friends is better, the small or the large. In that case, I would say that I prefer the larger because it is more convenient for you when you need something. You have more options when something goes wrong with some of them and because you can learn more from other people.

First, you will always have someone to help you in any circumstance. For example, if you have just one friend and that's the one that you are used to talk with, you will probably feel bad when he tells you that he has something to do, but if you have a lot of friends maybe one of them is available to listen to you. The probabilities are bigger. Also, if you are looking for an opinion to do something, you will get more than just one, and then you can choose the best one.

Also, it is common that we spend most of the time they can get tired of being too much of time together. Sometimes something happens with your group of friends, and they're not being good as they used to, you will probably want to take a time and let the things resolve, while you hang out with your other groups of friends. If you have more friends, you will never go to have this problem.

Finally, we have that if you have a lot of friends, you have more chance of learning from someone else. One of the things that I like from my friends is that I can learn from them. I have a lot of friends, and I appreciate them because their knowledge, and I'm so grateful that I have them close. That's what happens when you have a large group of friends. You can learn more and improve your knowledge.

To conclude, we can say that large
Prompt: Some people prefer a small group of friends. Others prefer a large group. Which do you prefer? Use specific reasons and details to support your choice.

Large Group of Friends

I prefer a large group of friends because it's more fun, you can do many things, also if one of your friends can not go out with you, you can call other friend.

If you have a lot of friends you can do many things. For example every day you can do an activity different for example shopping, go to the movie theater, go to skeighter, and also with a big group you can have more fun.

If you have a big group of friends you can go out wherever you want and if you have a little group of friends for example 2 or 3 maybe one day they could not go out with you, however if you have many friends, you always have a friend with you, and when you have a problem you will have more advice, and more support.

If you have a big group and one day one of this guys doesn't want to go with you, also you can call other friends. I like to have a lot of friends because is more fun and you can know more people, and when you have a lot of friends they can help you in a lot of things.

Sometimes you have to be careful because some people is mean because sometimes they don't say the true, so you have you be careful when you have to choose your friends.

I think is better a large group of friends because you can do many funny things, and you have more support when you are in bad moments.
Prompt: Some people prefer a small group of friends. Others prefer a large group. Which do you prefer? Use specific reasons and details to support your choice.

Nowadays, one person can choose between having a friendly relationship with a big group of people or a small group. Having friends is very important in life because it can involve knowing different points of view, different people and have loyal people besides you. However, in my opinion, it is better if a person joins a large group of people, instead of a small group, because of three reasons.

The first reason is because in a big group of friends a person has more chance of knowing more people and having more friends. Having more friends is a good thing because a person can enjoy different characters and personalities. This fact allows the person to choose between the people who he or she likes and become friends. If a person joins a small group, he or she would not have the opportunity to choose between so many different people, because of the little number of people in that group. Therefore, in a small group, a person has more opportunities to choose between different people.

The second reason is because in a large group of people there could be many different and funny activities to do. If a group is joined by many people, there could be more ideas for activities and more people to be in those activities, and perhaps more people who can invite friends and expand that group. Furthermore, in a large group, there is more probability to have people who can have different ideas or better ideas for activities to do. Therefore, having a large group of friends can involve having funny activities.

The third reason is because in a large group of people, there is more people to trust in and more people who can help you. The fact of having a good friend who always helps you and who is always besides you, is very helpful and beautiful. However, is better if a person has more than one person who can be a good friend with and who can always be helped. In a large group there is always people willing to help each other and willing to be helped by others. And this is beautiful, having good friends who can cheer you up when you are upset or when something very bad is happening. Therefore, having more friends means to have more people to help you.

In conclusion, having the opportunity of joining a big group of people is better because one person can know different people, this group can do funnier activities, and in this group people can help and be helped easily. In my own case, I have always had large group of friends and I have to say that it was better than having small groups. I have always enjoyed being in these large groups and I think I will keep doing it for the rest of my life.
Prompt: Some people prefer a small group of friends. Others prefer a large group. Which do you prefer? Use specific reasons and details to support your choice.

I will prefer a small group. A small group has strong image to prefer the group. Also the large group has strong image too. But the small group is stronger than large group. Because the large group has a lot kind of people in the group.

It's too hard for me.
Most parents want to be great to their child. They try to do their best for their child and sometimes they make mistakes because there are no correct answer to be a good parent. However, we can find out something by considering when we think about our parents. Actually, I think that parents have to be efficient to support their son/daughter. They also should spend a lot of time to communicate with their children, and it is important to let their children know apparently what is wrong or right.

First of all, parents have to do efficient things that can help their children. More specifically, they have to have money as much as they can support children. Truthfully speaking, poverty is not going to make a problem every time, but we can hear some disasters from news that is caused by poverty. To young children, that affects them to be worse. It is easy to think that they are unhappy because parents have not supported them as much as their friend's parents have done. So, parents need more responsibility to support their children efficiently.

Second, they should spend a lot of time to talk with their son/daughter or with each other. Most teenagers do not think their parents are knowing about how much they are. The main reason is the lack of communication. Parents show that they are always trying to understand what they are thinking. When the children would be teenagers, they might want to talk with their parents what they are worrying about, if they have tried to be ready to hear the voice of their child.

Finally, to educate their child, they need to make standardized thought on how to distinguish things that are right and wrong. They need to show apparently when their child makes a mistake. Also, they need to teach what is the right way. It is important to let them know because when they do something wrong, and when they do not know about what is right, they might repeat that again.
Prompt: Describe what makes a good parent. Use one or more personal experiences to support your ideas.

In the world today, many people look for the method of being a good parent and sometimes they do not find it. People say comes with time, that everybody learn by themselves how to be a good father or mother. It is true that people learn by this way because with their own personal experiences, they can know what to do and what not to do to raise their children in the best way. In the world, there are three main values that every parent need in order to be a good parent. These three values are: being an example at every moment, teaching with love and treating others with love and respect.

First, parents need to be an example in everything at every moment to be successful. Usually during the childhood, children see their parents as their heroes. This occurs mainly because of the example they give to them. Parents who are friendly, respectful, loving and responsible, know how to deal with their problems in life because they know they have the guidance and help of God. Teenagers usually do not pay very much attention to their parents and they decide to do whatever they want. Teenagers want to try everything the world has to offer and they forget of the counsel of their parents. When this happen, some parents feel they have failed with their responsibility of raising their children in the best way. Even to the best parent in the world, this can happen because this changes that happen in teenagers are normal so parents should not feel sad. Parents have to always be an example no matter what happens.

Second, parents need to teach in an environment of love. When there is love in a home, people can feel it can homes become a real place to find safety and refuge from the dangers and worries of the world. I remember that every time I came home, I would feel very good and that I could rest from everything that happened in my daily life. In my family, my parents have always showed love to us and the way we can express this love to others. I always felt safe at home because of this important value.

Third, treating everyone as we treat ourselves is the last important value a parent must have to be successful. In my own life I have seen how treating others in the best way, can help us be a better and happy person. When I was a child I did not have many friends and most of the time, there were people that I did not like and that were really mean. Most of the time I did not know what to do. Now when I encounter someone that I do not like very much I greet him in the nicest way I can. This creates in me a good feeling, something that tells me I did the best thing. With time, I start to love that person. I started to develop this when I was on my mission. Now it is really hard to me to hate someone or dislike him/her.

In sum, parents that show a good example, love and that strive to treat others the best way the can, are successful not only in their family core, but also in their own life. I personally believe that striving to be a good parent will help us all be a great person and friend.
Parents are the principal part of a family. What makes a good parent? A good parent must be a good provider, a friend and a)

The first characteristic of a good parent is being a provider. Parents that are prepared with the resources to provide their families are more likely to be the iconic form of a good parent. Working hard and looking for improvements in their jobs are good strategies to be a good provider. The following example describes this characteristic. A middle-aged woman with financial problems was very concerned about the health of her son. Being widowed and alone, she found the way to find another job and provide the necessary medicines for her son.

Secondly, good parents have to be friends of their children. Passing time with the children is very important for a parent. This is the time where parents can gain the trust and love from their children. A friend of my had a bad experience of being mostly alone throughout his childhood because his both parents worked. This resulted in a very weak relationship between the parents and their son.

Finally, parents must be a very good example for their children. Showing manners, respect for others and hard work, parents will be teaching their children very good values. Everybody knows the consequences of a bad example from the parents to their children: prison, drugs and rebellion.
Parents loves their children, that is so true. However, children always complain about their parents. So how to become a good parent is a good question to think about. From my personal experience, I think become a good parent should be responsible. That means they should do their parent job, to take good care of their kid and have time to communicate with them, play with them, also help them to overcome their hard time.

Children in different times have different needs. When they were babies, they need their parents’ attention to take good care of them. After that, when they become bigger, they wish their parents have more time to play with them. And when they grew up, they have their own hobbies and dreams, they hope their parents can support him. After they get in to school, they want their parents to encourage them and help them to do well. I have an experience, when I was in high school, I am not really good at math, so I did not do well in the test. My mom did not punish me, however, she helped me with my homework and my notes. She study math with me together. She’s action very encourage me to do well. If my mom did not support me during my hard time, I believe I could not do well at my final test. So parent should always help their children to overcome their difficult times. Also, I think for a good parent should always communicate with their children. To know what their children thinking about, and to know their goals. That is also important to keep their relationship stronger.

From my point of views, take care of kids, play with them, communicate with them, to know what they want, and also help them through hard times, they all can makes a good parent. However, there are many other ways also can help people become a good parent. No matter which way, if parent use their heart to love their children that is a good parent.
Prompt: Describe what makes a good parent. Use one or more personal experiences to support your ideas.

How impotent are parents in their children’s life? Parents are the most important people in their childrean life because they give the firts teachings and the main formation on their kids. In order to be a good parent parents have to be knowledgeable, hard workers, and with a good religion foundation.

First of all, parents have to be intelligent and smart people. Parents need to answer different questions everyday and transmit knowledge to their kids because their kids trust in them. I remember my childhood when I had questions and I knew that my parents could answer me and they did it. For this reason, I think that knowledge plays an important role in parents’ life.

Second, parents always have to give and be a good example. Parents have to be hard workers in order to teach their children. I remember all that I learned from my parents came from their own example. For example, when I was in school, my parents taught me that I have to study a lot because studies are important and I remember seeing my dad studying hard in their school and his words. This made me to be a good student. Also, my mother always worked hard and I learned the importance of being a worker. Work is something that only can be transmitted by example.

Finally, good parents have a good religion formation. Parents are the only ones who can teach good principles to their kids and the best way is through religion. My parents were not religion people before, but they became members of the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saint, then they became good parents for me and my siblings. My older sisters says that my parents are better now than when they did not have religion. My parents taught me good principles that they learn in the church.

In summary, parents are very important in everyone’s life. For that parents have to be bright in knowledge because they are teachers for their kids. Also, parents have to teach that nothing is free in this life. For that they have to be hard workers. The religion forms good parents and makes them able to teach to their children. In other words, be a good teacher. Parents are more important than they think they are. For that they have to be better every day.
Prompt: Some people prefer a small group of friends. Others prefer a large group. Which do you prefer? Use specific reasons and details to support your choice.

Most of the time large group friends have the best parties. In fact, people who make business should get a lot of friends such as connections. However, people most people prefer to have better relationship with their friends that is why people prefer to have small groups of friends. Therefore, I am one of that group that prefer small groups. Also, I consider large group for many aspects. So, In this essay will describe advantage of disadvantages between quantity of friends and quality of friends.

First of all, most young people prefer quality of friend to hang out on weekends. On weekends is the best day of the teenagers because is when they can be themselves. Furthermore, the best party are when there are so many people to enjoy as much they can. Also, is a good way to get a girlfriend having a big group of friends. On the other hand, people who have a small group of friend cannot enjoy very well at the party because they do not have to many friends to dance or something like.

Secondly, Most of adults who want have better relationship prefer quality of friends. The best person who I have admired is my first companion in my mission because he guided me in my first days in my mission. Most of the time people prefer quality because they can share their feeling and have good advices from their friends. Also, they can make business each other because they can influence each other. Otherwise, people who have large group of friends they cannot do that. Because there are of kind of friend within that group and sometimes there are bad friends. Bad friends could make damage to the others.

In summary, people should consider quality and quantity to choose their friends. Therefore, in my personal opinion I prefer large group of friends to hang out and small groups of friends to share my feeling. People must make sure what kind of friend should choose. In brief, depend of the personality of each person to choose their friends.
Prompt: Describe what makes a good parent. Use one or more personal experiences to support your ideas.

Many people have a hard time to raise their children all over the world. There are high technology and many types of temptations everywhere. However, a good parent can raise their children well if they show their children rules, good examples, and traditional.

First, parents should make rules to help their children understand what is right or what is wrong. If their children know the standard between right and wrong, they can distinguish either right or wrong. For example, if a child steal other child's toy, his or her parent should teach him or her wrong action. They sometimes spank him or her to let him or her know how serious his or her actions is bad. Recognizing rules for distinguishing right and wrong help children make a good decision.

Second, parents should show good examples to their children. By showing good examples has more powerful message to their children just by saying words. For instance, my mother has worked hard every day. I do not remember when she have said to me that I had to work hard. I just know I have to work hard as my mother does. Being great examples to children provide wonderful lessons throughout children's lives.

Third, having traditional for a family by parents' directions brings familis a lot of happiness. If parents celebreate their traditinal events with their children, their children can understand their family history and traditional. Once they learn how to celebate those traditinal, they have a chance to pass those traditional events to generations to generations. For example, a guy learned his family traditional to do volunteer work on new year's day. After his family did service to others first, they can eat traditonal food for celebating a new year. When he had his own children, he has kept doing his traditional event with his family. Passing traditional events and celebations makes children's lives be filled with love, care, and memories.

To sum up, a good parent should teach their children rules to distinguish between right and wrong, good examples, and traditional events. By showing love and care to their children to underdand thoes lesson
Prompt: Describe what makes a good parent. Use one or more personal experiences to support your ideas.

When people ask me the question, "who do you love most in this world?", I do not hesitate to say God and my parents. Parents play an extremely important role on children's life. Having a good parent (or parents) is essential for life. Some of the characteristics of good parents are good examples to be followed; they are always close to us when we need them; and they are always willing to teach us something.

A good parent is always a good example to be followed. There is no other way of showing children what is right if parents do not do right things. For example, have you ever seen children cursing others? This happens because their parents are using curse words to communicate. If a parent speaks correctly and uses polite words to communicate, showing respect, their children will follow the same direction.

In addition to that, it is also important for a parent to be always close to his children. It does not mean that they have to be physically close, but they have to show their sons that they are there for anything they need, or just by the fact that they are there. It makes their children more confident, and it shows them that they are not alone. While traveling, I have always communicated with my parents through Internet. They are millions of miles far from here, but I know that in case I need, they will be there for me.

Last, a parent needs to be willing to teach their children. Teach means to educate, to tell them what is correct and what is not correct. Teaching involves not being funny and playful all the time. It involves being serious, and even if something does not please their children, they will do it if they need to teach the right attitude; otherwise children will grow without limits, without knowing how to respect others.

Characteristics such as being good teachers, being close to their children and being a good example to be followed are simple and essential for a child to respect and love their parents. Children will certainly grow knowing concepts of right and wrong. To sum up, they will grow up loving their parents, just like the way I love mine.
Some people prefer a small group of friends. Others prefer a large group. Which do you prefer? Use specific reasons and details to support your choice.

I usually prefer a small group of friends. If I meet the small group of friends, I will be able to send my thinking and situation more clearly, and we are going to understand better than the large group because we can focus more clearly each other. So in my case, I prefer more them and I have the same small group of friends in Korea and in America. If we also make the small group of friends, we will be able to help more individually about each other. That is way I prefer the small group more than the large group. I really like the small group of friends.
Some people prefer a small group of friends. Others prefer a large group. Which do you prefer? Use specific reasons and details to support your choice.

What do you prefer? Some people prefer a small group of friends, others a large group, the best thing you can do is have a small group of friends, for many reasons like: you need to give your trust only a few exclusive people called "friends" a, another reasons is you need a little of privacy and time for yourself, you can do more things with a small group of persons because in this times everyone is allways occupied in you their own problems, work, family, etc.

The first place give your trust only a few exclusive people called "friends", is the best decision you can make, everybody else are person that you only know, because even if think that you know very well a one person, you can't know how is one person in a 100% so could be not very secure, thought.

Another reason to have a small group of friends is because you need a little of privacy and time for yourself, so you don't need be public your live because when you have many friends that is a common thing, but also one person need be social, but doesn't mean has a lots of really friends because only a couple times in live you can found a truly friend, a friend gives everything for you even their own live.

However exist people like have many friends and trust in everyone but i think that is not a smart idea at all, maybe found the balance for this problem could be the best, but sometimes no always we can found it, so until that time i say is better have a small group of friends.
Prompt: Some people prefer a small group of friends. Others prefer a large group. Which do you prefer? Use specific reasons and details to support your choice.

A lot of people in the world like to have friends. Some of them prefer to have a small group of friends. Other prefer to have a large group of friends. Friends can help us to understand each other better and to live in harmony. In my personal opinion, having a small group of friends is better because of three reasons: you can get together easily, you can know each other better and you can help each other whenever they need your help.

A small group of friend is better because you can get together easily. When you have a small group of friends is easy to find them and get together. They can be busy but one time they will find you to get together. It is also easy to get along with a small group of friends because is not too many people that you have to worry about. You know the things that your friends like to do and them it is going to be easy to find out one thing in common to do together.

A small group of friend is better because you can know each other. Since you have a small group of friends you can know their weaknesses and you can help them. It is very important to know your friends because this way you can take care of them. For example: if you have a large group of friends it is more difficult to know each personality of them. If you have a small group of friends you can help them with their problems and troubles.

A small group of friends is better because you can help each other whenever they need your help. If you have a small group of friends, you will have enough time to help them if they need you. Otherwise having a large group of friends it is hard to get to help everyone. For example: you can spend time with them and you don't have to worry. Moreover a large group of friends can make you worry too much about each one of them.

Friends are always delightful but a small group of them is wonderful. You can get together with them very easy. You can know each other weaknesses and help if it is necessary. You can help each other whenever they need. What is very important is to treat each one of your friend very well with their problems. It is important to take care of them and to give the attention that they need. When you have a small group of friends, you are more successful than when you have a large group of friends.
Prompt: Describe what makes a good parent. Use one or more personal experiences to support your ideas.

Parents

I was watching the news last week, and there were a report saying that home violence has increased 30% since the economy is bad. One of the cases is that parents are home most of the day, and they cannot handle their kids' behavior, and they get desperate with them. Therefore, they spank them, and even sometimes offend them. The economy is bad, and the situation that some families are facing is severe, but there is no reason to be violent with the family. Parents have the responsibility to educate without violence, and to preach with the example. However parents have to acquire characteristics to be good parents.

One of the characteristics that good parents must have is patient. Every single human being is different and should be educated, but if parents do not have enough patience to do it, violence can be one of the consequences. Also, if the example is being violent children will do the same with their siblings, friends etc. Therefore, a good parent should be someone who is not get mad because the errors of their kids or just because is facing a difficult situation.

A good parent also should have love and peace. It happened to me when I was living in Mexico, I loved to visit my grandma’s house because she was so lovely, and everything that she wanted to teach us or show us how to do it she used lovely and wisdom words, simple enough to be understandable for children. Therefore, everybody loved my grandma, her sons and daughters, grandchildrens, and even no direct family had a big appreciation for her example.

To conclude, there are many characteristics that make a good parent, but sometimes, the strongest example comes from the heart. Where the real feelings for others take place. Therefore, a definition of a good parents can be a variable in each of us according how we had been grown up.